Meanderings

Well, Readers o' mine, I am not sure where you all traveled this last weekend, but I spent the majority of it traveling the byways and highways and canals and rivers and fens and bogs of King Henry II's England.

I traveled with Adelia and Mansur and Gyltha and little Allie. We traveled by horseback and donkey and wooden carts. We met Queen Eleanor of Aquitaine; her husband, King Henry; a deceased Fair Rosemond Clifford, one of King Henry's mistresses, and scores of other characters, real and fictional, who might have existed during that time.

We discovered in a cave, on a hill, not far from Glastonbury Abbey, the remains of the 'once and future king' and his sword Excalibur. Long live King Arthur.

As we are wondering and riding through the countryside the only air pollution we encountered were from fires. One can't even imagine how pure the air was.

There was no city sprawl with billboards (I think of as sight pollution). No industrial parks on the outskirts. No high-rise buildings blocking the horizon.

The forests were thick and green and full of wildlife. During King Henry II's time, it was required that the forests be cut down one arrow's shot from the roadways. That cut down on travelers being accosted by highwaymen and brigands hiding in the forest.

The stars at night were nothing short of phenomenal and awe-some.

And that is about all I enjoyed in my the travels.

Adelia, the main character, is a doctor, educated in Salerno, Italy. More like a doctor in that she studied the dead. She could determine why and how and maybe when the victims had died.

Italy seems a bit more forward-thinking than England. In her home country she was a person of knowledge and expertise. In England, she couldn't practice medicine, but folks would think she was a witch.

She relied on her manservant to help her, a eunuch from the Middle East. When Mansur was a boy, he had a beautiful and incredible singing voice. Unfortunately, he was taken by Catholic priests who wanted to keep his voice pure for singing to the Lord. To prevent his voice from changing, they castrated him. Can you believe that? Isn't that just barbaric?

Now the English, at the time of King Henry II, were Catholic. The pope AND the king assigned bishops to oversee the different counties and towns.

In these books, the bishops were 'allowed' to keep mistresses. "Allowed" being in that no one objected if they had one or two or...

I learned a new meaning of "tithing". During this time period 'tithings' were groups of ten householders who lived close together and were responsible for each other's behavior. If one of the men was caught committing a crime, they all suffered for it. Oh, dear.

And the punishments! Oh, gracious. In one scene, King Henry is arguing with the Bishop of Wells. Seems three of the men in his bishopdom were accused of heresy. The Bishop wanted the King to execute the heretics. The King was trying to eliminate some of the reasons for executions. He told the Bishop he would have to order the men executed instead. The Bishop couldn't order the executions because The Church didn't allow executions, so the king MUST do it. I see somewhat of a problem there.

The King came up with a compromise. He would order the men to have the letter H branded on their foreheads (making sure the hot iron didn't go too deep). Deep or not, that would hurt like the dickens.

King Henry is given credit for the beginning of the jury system. He really did try to tone down the barbaric acts of his countrymen. Not that he was a kind and gentle lamb, but it was obvious his way of ruling was better than previous royal leaders.

And women of money were not allowed to chose their husbands. If she was single, her parents found her a husband. If she was widowed, the King found her one. A husband who would combine the lands and make them profitable....for him. King Henry needed money to continue fighting his wars and keeping his country from ruin. Well, and paying for his mistresses and his scads of children.

This last weekend I have travel to Glastonbury and Canterbury and a myriad of other towns of reknown. I searched the internet for pictures of Salerno, Italy and Godstow Abbey and Wolvercote.

I found paintings and information dedicated to the royal family of Henry's. The paintings depicting the King and his Queen and their children.

In the current book I am reading, Adelia heads off to Sicily, escorting the youngest of Henry and Eleanor's children to her wedding. The King of Sicily will be quite a catch for the eleven-year-old Princess Joanna.

Just a bit barbaric. Always reading, and currently reading, "A Murderous Procession" by Ariana Franklin Roberta "Adelia began to get cross. Why was it women who were to blame for everything—everything, from the Fall of Man to these blasted hedg-es?" Ariana Franklin, 'The Serpent's Tale'

Book Club Meets Wednesday Evening

Next Wednesday, May 26th, is the next Cunningham Book Club meeting.

We will gather at Eilene Crick's for a potluck supper at 6:30.

All members (old and new) should bring reading suggestions for the coming year.

Books provoking thought and discussion are encouraged. Also, it is generally a good idea to read the book first. Sometimes those recommended by magazine book reviews can be real stinkers. (and sometimes even family members recommend questionable reading material for a group of ladies in Cunningham, the heart of America.)

Check your calendars so you can have an idea of which month you would like to play the hostess.

If you have wanted to join our merry little group. Now would be a good time. New books and new ideas are always welcome.

Health Department COVID update

The Pfizer COVID-19 vaccine has now been approved for people aged 12 years and over. Up to now, this particular vaccine has been available for people aged 16 years and over. Currently, the Kingman County Health Department has not kept this vaccine on hand due to storage concerns.

Once this vaccine is thawed, the Pfizer vaccine is only good for 5 days whether the vial is punctured or not. We cannot keep this vaccine on hand if there is no demand for it.

Are you a parent who is interested in having your 12-17 year old vaccinated for COVID-19? We need to hear from you. We are not yet scheduling appointments for this age group, but if there is some interest, that helps us plan for the future.

There are other vaccinations that children need for school. We want to make sure your child is protected from other dangerous infections like Meningitis, Pertussis, Hepatitis A, Hepatitis B, Measles, and Chickenpox. Please call us at 620-532-2221 to make sure all your vaccinations are up to date.

We will do our best to answer any questions you have about COVID-19 vaccines and any other vaccines.

We are still scheduling COVID-19 vaccines for anyone 18 years and over who wants to be vaccinated at no cost to you—we are giving COVID-19 vaccines on Tuesdays at the Health Department.

Kansas is now adopting the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) latest guidance that fully vaccinated people no longer need to wear masks indoors or outdoors or physically distance except when businesses, public transportation, healthcare facilities, and other vulnerable populations require doing so.

Being fully vaccinated means 2 weeks after receiving that 2nd Moderna or Pfizer vaccination or after one Johnson & Johnson vaccination.

Being vaccinated does have its advantages. Fully vaccinated people also don't need to quarantine when exposed to someone with COVID-19 infection. COVID-19 vaccination has additionally been documented to significantly reduce severe illness risks leading to hospitalization.

COVID-19 vaccination is helping bring this pandemic to an end. We are not there yet, but we do now have hope that normalcy is getting closer.

We are now giving COVID-19 vaccinations on Tuesdays. Please call us at 620-532-2221 to get vaccination scheduled.

Statement on Shot Clock Announcement:

The KSHSAA is aware the NFHS has approved the use of a 35 second shot clock for basketball beginning with the 2022-2023 season. The KSHSAA staff and Executive Board will consult with member school administrators during the next year to determine the best decision for the student-athletes in Kansas. Because the rule change is a state adoption, it is an option states may want to consider for use, but not required.

Full release from NFHS:

INDIANAPOLIS, IN (May 10, 2021) —

Beginning with the 2022-23 season, a 35-second shot clock will be permitted in high school basketball games by state association adoption. A proposal for a national rule mandating a shot clock was not approved.

A shot clock was among the topics discussed by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS) Basketball Rules Committee at its annual meeting April 20-22 held virtually this year. All recommendations were subsequently approved by the NFHS Board of Directors.

Rule 2-14 states that each state association may adopt a shot clock beginning in the 2022-23 season -- according to guidelines outlined in the Basketball Rules Book -- to encourage standardization among states. Guidelines include displaying two timepieces that are connected to a horn that is distinctive from the game-clock horn, and using an alternative timing device, such as a stopwatch at the scorer's table, for a shot clock malfunction. The guidelines also allow for corrections to the shot clock only during the shot-clock period in which an error occurred and the officials have definite information relative to the mistake or malfunction.

"We provided the committee with a lot of information regarding the shot clock, including responses to a 46-question survey sent to states currently using a shot clock," said Theresa Wynns, NFHS director of sports and officials and liaison to the Basketball Rules Committee.

Rule 3-5-4e was added to allow players to wear head coverings for religious reasons without obtaining state association approval. The head covering shall not be made of abrasive or hard materials and must be attached so that it is highly unlikely to come off during play. Basketball is the sixth sport in which a rule related to the wearing of head coverings or other equipment for religious reasons has been adopted, following volleyball, field hockey, soccer, spirit and swimming.

The official signals were also modified to use the same hand signal for a player control foul and a team control foul. Officials should use Signal 36, which is a hand placed at the back of the head, for both types of fouls. Previously, a team control foul was communicated with a punch of the hand.

"It is redundant to have different signals to communicate that a foul will be charged to a member of the team in control of the ball," Wynns said. "Officials don't understand the need to differentiate between a player control foul and a team control foul, and many game participants, table personnel and fans don't know the difference."

A complete listing of the basketball rules changes will be available on the NFHS website at www.nfhs.org. Click on "Activities & Sports" at the top of the home page and select "Basketball."

According to the most recent NFHS High School Athletics Participation Survey, a total of 540,769 boys participated in basketball in 18,617 schools, and 399,067 girls participated in the sport in 18,210 schools across the country. It is the third-most popular sport for boys and girls.

USDA Reminds Producers of 2021 Acreage Reporting Requirement

The Kingman County Farm Service Agency reminds agriculture producers that July 15, 2021, is the deadline to file an acreage report for spring seeded crops. Planted acres must be reported to FSA by July 15, 2021. The Agricultural Improvement Act of 2018 (2018 Farm Bill) requires producers on a farm to submit annual acreage reports on all cropland.

Timely acreage reports for all crops and land uses, including prevented and failed acreage that producers submit to their local FSA office, are important to ensure program eligibility for all farm programs."

Acreage reports to FSA are considered timely filed when completed by the applicable final crop reporting deadline, which may vary from state to state. Producers who do not enroll by the July 15 deadline are subject to late-filing requirements. Producers should contact their local office for an appointment to provide an accurate acreage report of their spring-seeded crops.

For questions on this or any FSA program, including specific crop reporting deadlines and planting dates, producers should contact their county FSA office or seek information online at www.fsa.usda.gov.

Exploring the Connection Between Math and the Arts

(StatePoint) While often thought of as two completely distinct subjects, art and math are intrinsically entwined. Not only can learning the fundamentals of one subject help a student excel in the other, but combining the subjects can make the traditionally intimidating field of math more accessible and approachable.

As more attempts are being made to integrate the arts into STEM learning at school, you can reinforce the intersection at home in the following ways:

- Explore history: Encourage your child to read books that explore the collision of art and math, such as "The Golden Ratio: The Story of Phi, the World's Most Astonishing Number." While authored by an astrophysicist, it's meant for readers of all backgrounds to enjoy.

- Say cheese: Photography incorporates many mathematical principles. Take a photography course together to examine how focal length, aperture and shutter speed affect images.

- Visualize it: Be sure your child is equipped with a top notch graphing calculator that provides visual support for mathematical exploration. Using a graphing calculator, students can apply mathematical formulas to create their own designs, art and even drawings. Look for a high-definition, easy-to-operate option, such as the fx-CG50 graphing calculator from Casio, which has the programming language Python built right into it, giving students the freedom to program the calculator to creatively arrive at solutions. Or check out Classpad.net, a free, all-encompassing online calculator alternative, with all the functionality of a handheld calculator.

- Enjoy fine arts: From the Dutch graphic artist M.C. Escher and his world famous lithographs, woodcuts and wood engravings, to the contemporary American sculptor Bathsheba Grossman who uses 3-D printing and computer programming to design mathematical sculptures, there are many visual artists for whom math is the very basis of their work. Take time to explore their collections and get inspired. With a hands-on approach to mathematics and art, you can help your child foster a love of both subjects.
